

A New Way to Manage Food Safety and Certification Programs

QA MANAGERS and staff today face increasing complexity—and, often, daunting time and resource demands—in administering food safety and quality certifications, managing inspections, and expediting product testing.

Is there help? Yes! The Food Quality Alliance (FQA) offers an efficient, high-quality path to obtaining and managing a host of food quality and safety related seals and certifications.

BENEFITS

• Cost Savings

Save up to 25% by bundling multiple services offered by FQA member companies.

• Combined Inspections

Enjoy greater efficiency and lower costs by “stacking” audits.

• Premium Services

FQA service providers are carefully selected based on their reputation for providing the highest quality service at competitive prices.

• Assistance in Bid Process

FQA’s expert client services staff will ensure that you get the best price and support for your particular combination of FQA services.

“The FQA Client Services Manager was very helpful and put us in touch with the right people at each of the certification companies of interest to us. Every contact we spoke to was informative and eager to help. The FQA secured substantial discounts based on the bundle of certifications we chose, saving us approximately 30%. The Food Quality Alliance has made this whole process much simpler and easier than we had expected.”

"We had been considering a number of certification programs, but were not sure which programs which would serve us best. We settled on bundling Non-GMO Project Verification with kosher certification, receiving a 10% discount. We hope to add gluten-free within the year. The whole process of multiple certification programs, centralized through the FQA, was simplified and stress-free."
